CURRENT SITUATION

Situation Summary:	The continued work overnight increased containment to 68%. Crews are working on secondary containment line construction and mop up will continue with a full suppression strategy. Weather today will bring daytime highs between 82-86°F with winds 15-20mph out of the Northeast and gusts reaching up to 25-35mph. The Red Flag Warning was lifted by the National Weather Service at 2PM yesterday. Today, crews will focus on mopping up hot spots of the identified areas from an earlier infrared flight along with further building containment lines to ensure the fire stays within the current footprint. Please use caution when driving as crews will continue to be working in and around the Bryson fire area.
