CSEC Trainings

A collaborative effort by the Los Angeles Probation Department, Department of Children and Family Services, and Nola Brantley Speaks provided several trainings for probation officers, social workers, public health, mental health, group home providers, foster family agencies, attorneys, law enforcement, health services, advocates, schools, CBOs/NGOs, DPSS, hotel owners, and community members.

Thank you for bringing this kind of training to the County. You are truly pioneering a movement that educates and opens the minds of our work community for the betterment of society as a whole. As for my experience with the training, I left with an improved sense of self and comfort in my own skin. Learning from the experiences of the facilitator allowed me to see a different perspective on the struggles the trans community faces on a daily basis. I can now apply the valuable knowledge I gained to help empower the clients I serve. ~ Probation

19 types of trainings
256 trainings offered
26,287 providers trained to more effectively work with CSEC survivors
CSEC 101 is an introductory training that introduces providers to CSEC, risk factors, pathways of entry into CSEC, needs of CSEC victims, and identification of CSEC victims.

The CSEC 101 awareness presentation was extremely powerful. I had no idea the intensity of this issue. Thank you for sharing your passion and for helping children feel safe and hopeful again. ~ LAUSD Teacher

Absolutely outstanding and very necessary training! As educators/Social Workers/Nurses it is imperative that we are aware of this issue and know the signs and how to respond. ~ School Counselor

CeCe is a 16-year-old female who was recently arrested for loitering and was in juvenile hall for 15 days. Her caseworker recently placed her at a level-12 group home. CeCe is not open to talking about her exploitation and denies being exploited. Anytime anyone asks her about CSEC related topics, she becomes defensive saying, “Bitch, you don’t know me.” When asked what her goals are, she responds, “to get the hell out of here as fast as I can!” The next day at school, she runs away to reunite with her exploiter. How can you engage CeCe?

Engagement

YOU are the intervention. Regardless if you have 5 minutes, 5 months, or 5 years with the youth, the relationship you develop with the youth will make a world of difference.

Trauma-Informed Approach

- It’s important to keep in mind the extent of trauma these youth experience. For many of them, they experienced not just the trauma while being commercially sexually exploited, but they also experienced trauma before they were exploited.
- Trauma greatly impacts how one relates to the self, the world, and others.
- Try to understand what’s underneath the behavior.

Precontemplation

Engagement Plan with CeCe:

- Talk with CeCe about things other than CSEC
- Work with the group home staff to develop a plan of engagement for when she returns to the group home
- Recognize her relative strength of going to school - even though she AWOL’d from school, she could’ve AWOL’d from the group home
- Connect CeCe with an advocate
- Create a safety plan

I learned the importance of unconditional regard, the meaning and relevance of engagement and establishing relationships geared at healing and acceptance.

Think Trauma

19 trauma-informed care trainings were provided by leading experts in the field, who discussed complex trauma, cultural competency, implicit bias, vicarious trauma, and trauma-informed care in the juvenile justice system.

The trauma training that has been provided over the past few months has really been helpful in understanding that our CSEC youth have layers and layers of trauma and because of their early childhood trauma, it made them vulnerable to exploitation. I used to think working with the girls in juvenile hall was just about a lot of drama, now I realize, it was trauma! ~ Probation

19 trainings = 1,404 participants trained

I attended the “Think Trauma” training taught by Dr. Marrow and it has fundamentally shifted the way I approach my work. Dr. Marrow provided real world examples and she presented a compassionate and refreshing perspective on the youth that we work with. By viewing their behavior through the lens of trauma and seeing these behaviors as survival coping mechanisms, we can begin to see the path forward to assist young people to develop new coping strategies, rather than engaging in power struggles. This training gave me a frame of reference to understand the impacts that traumatic experiences have on youth development and helped me better understand some of the factors underlying the difficult behaviors we see. The class resonated very strongly with me because it describes what we see every day in the youth and families we serve. Her approach also values and honors the experiences of staff. The class helped me begin to better understand the impact of vicarious trauma on staff working with juvenile justice youth and helped me further realize the importance of self-care for staff. I am very grateful to Dr. Marrow for developing this class. ~ Probation
Responding to the Trauma of CSEC

The training provides an overview of complex trauma of girls involved in commercial sexual exploitation, highlighting the intersectionality of gender and race.

Ms Bilal, spoke about the importance of Healing Informed Care (HIC) for service providers, family and the community. There has been an abundance of discussion around “Trauma Informed Care”. This training takes it to the next step in that it explores the belief that healing is possible and necessary for CSEC youth. Further, the training addresses basic strategies for implementing Healing Informed Care including staff training and education. The training impacted me in that it reinforced my belief in the importance of continuing to listen to the client, build on therapeutic relationships, focus on strengths, and renew the commitment of seeking to understand the client from her/his prospective in a non-judgmental manner. ~ Public Health

Being aware of the trauma of CSEC and the effect is has on your work is crucial. This information is so important since many survivors of human trafficking were once or are CSEC. After Hours Ministry is so thankful for the excellent way in which the training was presented. ~ After Hours Ministry

This is an excellent training for people who have not worked with CSEC youth in a mental health setting. ~ Orange County Health Care Agency

This training was informative and experiential, whereby one activity asked the attendees to sit with various emotions and feel them with the client, such as rage, sadness, and betrayal, which is something that providers hear about when working with CSEC youth. This training was powerful and well worth attending for any individual who seeks to gain a better understanding of the emotional process that CSEC youth move through within treatment. ~ Five Acres
The Healing Begins with You

A one-day interactive training course exploring strategies for addressing the overlapping phenomenon of burnout and vicarious trauma among those who are workers in the fight against human trafficking. Through a fusion of various teachings and modern self-care practices participants will explore practical ways to maintain vibrancy and strength in loving others, self, and the mission of social service. Participants will also discuss the process of identity development and strategies for identity reformation for CSEC (including alternative therapies, post-traumatic growth, and other strategies for healing from complex PTSD).

This training was very different than any other training I’ve been to. The trainer did a great job at educating us on how we can be the best support we can be and reminding us that it’s all about them – not about us. ~ Foster Care Provider

This training was AMAZING! I can’t believe how honest and open the trainer was about her personal experiences both helpful and hurtful. It’s so inspiring to know that our youth can recover from the hell they have been subjected to – that there truly is hope. The part of the training on labeling really hit hard for me. We all must do a better job on seeing these youth as kids first – not continue to label them for all the things that they have been through – but really see them for the beautiful young people that they are. ~ DCFS

I am so glad we are finally shedding light on the plight of transgender females and gay males who are trafficked, often landing in this situation as a result of the rejection of their families. Nola’s training illustrated the youth with whom we work beautifully and I am so glad we are spreading awareness of these beautiful human beings who are so deserving of love and understanding of their life circumstances.

Becoming a Trans Ally

This training discusses effective strategies for engaging the transgender community.

117 participants trained

The Trans Ally training was such an incredible experience for me. The activities were eye opening and impactful, and I left with actionable tools I can use personally and in my organization to ensure we are thinking as active allies, not just for trans community members. The whole concept of an active ally is so powerful in serving under-served communities. ~ 211 LA County

The TransAlly training is something that everyone should experience! The trainer is knowledgeable, personable, funny and engaging! He takes the class on a journey and compels one to take a hard look at the world around us as we walk in someone else’s shoes. This training truly changed the way I advocate for not only transgender youth, but for all people! ~ Probation Director

The Trans-Ally training had a tremendous impact on increasing cultural competency with the Transgender Community. Although, the Transgender Community is represented under the LGBT+ umbrella, it has been evident from my first LGBT training, that in order to fully understand the needs and challenges of this community, that a separate eight-hour training would be needed. It was very encouraging to finally see this happening. – Deputy Probation Officer

Technology Trainings

Parenting in a Digital World

This training provides an overview of the dangers of the Internet and social media as well as strategies for keeping youth safe online.

I found Parenting in a Digital World to be an excellent training....it gives a revealing look on the dangers and risks involved when parents give their kids free reign on the internet - particularly the very real dangers and risks involved with the seemingly innocent video games and apps that kids use all the time. Not only did the training open my eyes to all the ways perpetrators can directly access those youth we work with, but also my own child through chat rooms on video games and popular apps, but it also equipped me with practical ways I can safeguard and monitor my child while using the internet, while also providing excellent advice on how to talk to your child about using the internet in a responsible, safe way. The result of the training for me has been that my daughter and I have more open talks about our thoughts on what is on social media, plus she understands and respects the reasons why we have internet safety rules in place. ~ DCFS

What the Tech

The training provided a discussion of current issues in cyber crimes as well as a discussion of how technology facilitates crimes against children.

The facilitator was really good. It is great to see that the county is expanding the training to cover the internet and social media. It’s so scary to know that our youth are subjected to so many negative things from the internet and that predators are preying on the vulnerabilities of these youth. The trainer really brought these realities to life. ~ Law Enforcement

I really enjoyed the Parenting/Caregiving in a Digital World. The training really assisted me in thinking about the impact of social media on children and things that I can use to undo the effects as a parent and a therapist working with other parents. I actually recommended the training to one of the parents I am working with, so he can have a better understanding of the resources available to him. ~ DMH

The compassion fatigue workshop has changed the way I live after work. The trainer was well skilled to drive key messages home that you just can't ignore anymore. Through all the tips she gave us to keep our lives balanced, I have purposefully put aside time to garden. Before this workshop, I would never garden and wouldn't call myself a green-thumb at all, but I decided to choose gardening as my decompression hobby and it’s been very satisfying to beautify and create a new ecosystem in my backyard in 1 season. The simple pleasure of sharing my harvests with co-workers and relatives allows more conversation to connect with others in different ways than before. ~ Public Health

Francoise is amazing! She is funny, entertaining and highly articulate and right on with vicarious trauma and how to deal with it....It has been a long time, since we have had a Trainer with such great insight and compassion.... ~ DCFS
Increasing Your Professional Health and Happiness

The training provides an overview of compassion fatigue, vicarious trauma, and burnout, and practical strategies to address these.

Nola and Falilah’s training, "Increasing your Health and Happiness" was amazing. Burnout is rampant among those who work with human trafficking survivors. It is key to understand how we can care for ourselves so that we can care for others fully, as this training expressed. ~ After Hours Ministry

My favorite thing about this training was that the speakers were so open and honest with us. To have people you admire and respect so much in the field open up about their mistakes, current struggles and triumphs was helpful, motivating and very much appreciated. ~ DMH
The training provided an overview of the Stages of Change model and applies harm reduction at each stage.

Safety Planning

• Identify red flags in situation and what to do
• Practice asking for help
• Identify potential crises, their warning signs, and coping strategies

Assisting youth and young adults as they regain a sense of power and wholeness after CSE abuse, requires a unique sensitivity and willingness to employ innovative strategies to help them find freedom. While harm reduction may in some ways seem to be counter-intuitive, it is a gracious and loving way of partnering with them on that freedom journey. As practitioners and helpers in the fight against human trafficking, we must seek to maintain the open-mindedness that will allow us to remain teachable and explore methods that are most helpful for the population. This harm reduction training will equip attendees with more tools to help these young people develop greater self-efficacy and empower them to experience progressive transformation that can lead to long-term stability and safety. ~ Leah Jonet
“Word on the Street” is a CSEC prevention curriculum for female adolescents. It was collaboratively developed by clinicians, probation officers, social workers, advocates, group home providers, & juvenile hall staff. There are 3 versions of the group curriculum (6-week curriculum, 1-day conference curriculum, 90-minute curriculum) and one-on-one workbook. In 2018, all versions of the curriculum will be translated into Spanish.

What a great curriculum and having a survivor of CSEC co-facilitating was very impactful. I’m excited to get this information into our schools, it is REALLY needed. Thank you for including us in your training and for all of the great work the County of Los Angeles is doing. ~ School Administrator

The CSEC prevention facilitator training was amazing! It is so important for our youth to know the truth about this issue and I want to get started on the workshops right away. I’m thinking that I may even use the curriculum in our agencies Wraparound program with our parents. ~ Wraparound Provider

Engagement Strategies: The CSEC Perspective

What is the most important thing for out-of-home care providers to know about CSEC?
- “Get to know the backgrounds of children who are sexually exploited, and not just by reading their file, but by actually listening to them in a non-judgmental way”
- “They only thing lots of abused children know how to do is run when things get stressful”
- “Children in out-of-home care stress a lot because they are not getting their basic needs of food, clothing, and transportation met by providers in a timely manner”
- “CSEC are more than just their CSE. They don’t want to be labeled and categorized by their abuse”

Engagement Strategies: The CSEC Perspective

How and why do youth in out-of-home placement become vulnerable to the commercial sex industry?
- “Running away at a young age (11-13)”
- “Wanting material things that their care providers cannot afford or will not provide”
- “Unaddressed trauma from a family history of sexual abuse”
- “Lack of self-worth due to past abuse”
- “History of people walking out on them and breaking promises”

This is a very important issue we should all be aware and we must keep our eyes and ears open for subtle clues to help save these victims. ~ ISD

Good info., from the number of homes we have been in over the years, it is likely we have crossed this situation and did not recognize it. gonna keep my eyes a little more open to whats going on around the house other than just the patient. ~ Fire

I thought the training was wonderfully done and EXTREMELY DEPRESSING......but fascinating!!!!!! It was engaging, and just very real....so it made me sad. But I’m totally glad I watched it, I learned a lot from it, and I think everyone should see it!!!! Very nicely done!!!!! Definitely one of the best trainings I’ve ever taken!!!! ~ LA County Office of Child Protection

It is truly heart-breaking that we live in a day and age where these kind of actions goes on exploiting the innocence of youth. I will make it my duty to be ever vigilant, to look for the clues, and report any suspicion of human sex trafficking. Thank you for the course. ~ Fire Department
